LONG LAKE MINING CO.

Mr. F. Bolton Returns From England—Platinum Find.

Mr. Frank Bolton and Mr. P. Bolton, his son, arrived in town yesterday morning from Manchester, Eng. Mr. Bolton is the manager of the Long Lake Mining Company, which is operating in the Manitou district. When Mr. Bolton left here some months ago to return to England, he took with him samples of platinum ore which he had assayed in the Old Country, getting values of the precious metal in good paying quantities. While he will make a thorough investigation of the platinum deposit Mr. Bolton says it will not interfere with his gold mining operations at Long lake, which he intends to push ahead with all possible speed.

GOLDEN STAR MAY START.

Mr. Kerr, formerly superintendent at the Golden Star, has recently been examining that mine, and it is expected that some fresh developments will be made public in a few days.

The nature of these is supposed to be along the lines of an amalgamation of the Golden Star, Lucky Coon, Crescent and Ferguson mines, under one management, and some other properties may also be included.

LOG CABIN GOLD MINING CO.

Mr. F. C. Fisk, now manager of the Log Cabin Gold Mining Co., is a man who has had a good deal of experience in this district, having been manager of the Decca, the ill-fated property, which Bannell Sawyer, of Montreal, was promoting, and which is now closed down.

The Log Cabin Co. is operating in the lower Seine district, on mining locations 0, 332 and 333, which lie on the south side of Wild Potato Lake. Across this property runs a bedded vein, the mineralized portion being 120 feet wide, and on this Mr. Fisk is sinking two shafts 300 feet apart, one on the north wall and the other on the south. These shafts are now down 55 and 65 feet respectively and it is his intention, when both have reached the 100 foot level to crosscut the reef, and then drift along the opposite wall till while other falls on the same stream can also be utilized. The company will use one fall for their mining plant and the other for the mill when built. The stock put on the market is all unwritten, and some well known mining and railway magnates are among the directors.

The same company also has holdings of copper lands near Heron Bay and in the Michipicoten district, but are not developing them at present. The force employed by Mr. Fisk now numbers 25 men, and he has steam hoist and steam drills working, not having yet put in a compressor plant.—Industrial Review.

ACCIDENT ON THE EMPRESS

Deck Hand Named Gorman Has His Leg Cut Off by the Towlane.

The steamer Empress arrived today having on board a deck hand named Joe M. Gorman, who had the misfortune to suffer the complete severance of one of his legs above the knee, by being caught in the towline. The accident happened about 6 o'clock this morning at Strenge Narrows, while Gorman was attempting to throw out the slack. He got his leg in one of the loops, and before he could extricate the member the line tautened, and severed the leg above the knee, the limb being cut so clean that it fell to the deck. There was very little hemorrhage as the friction of the line burnt the flesh and seared the severed arteries. The injured man was taken to the hospital this afternoon where an operation will be necessary, and another piece of the bone renewed. He retained consciousness, and ate his breakfast this morning after the accident occurred.

METRONOME.

One or two—or perhaps two or three persons have said time and time again that they don't like "Metronome's column." This might be considered to distress the writer, but it doesn't. He is used to hearing comments, both favorable and otherwise during the many years he has been writing over and under the nom de plume, and he now regards a criticism as his criticism with as much equanimity as he does soup as a first course to dinner.

However I would like to explain that simple little items which appear commonplace to many of the readers of this column, strike an individual now and then like the coughing of Mount Pelee struck the people of St. Pierre, and he goes and lies awake nights thinking over the kind of torture he (or she) would like to introduce me to. These have, like the Mikado's punishments for compassing the death of the heir apparent, boiling oil and melted lead in them. This may seem very funny, or even ludicrous to some people, but I beg to assure them, that it is all on the "dead square."

During H. D. Alston's visit to town he has been engaged on an ingenious device for pumping air at the foot of the shaft of the Royal Sovereign, which will materially facilitate the operations of the miners. The balance of the piping in connection with the water and steam, together with a house for hoisting ore from No. 2 shaft, has later, when she saw a man putting up 24 sheet posters, who no sooner filled one stand and marched off in triumph to another, than the goats formed up and ate every shred of paper off the board.

Mr. McRae's work on the stage is original and clever, his habitant pieces bringing down the house.

Mr. H. M. Sutherland and Miss M. Lamond were married last Wednesday at the residence of the groom's sister, Mrs. Donald McLeod. The wedding was a very quiet affair, only the most intimate friends and relatives being present. Rev. W. M. Rochester, pastor of Knox church, tied the nuptial knot. Mr. Sutherland is our best vocalist, and has for some years choirmaster of Knox church. He is immensely popular with all classes and a favorite in local musical circles having figured prominently in all the ambitious musical events of the last few years, such as opera, oratorio and choral festivals. We are not going to lose him now however as he will make Rat Portage his home.

The bride came here from Toronto a few years ago to teach music. She was well equipped for her profession, being an honor graduate from the Toronto college of music. She devoted her attention to juvenile instruction, and got wonderful results as was shown by the marked proficiency of her pupils at her last recital. By thus demonstrating the success of her teaching methods, Miss Lamond got more pupils than she could attend to unless she worked early and late, but she worked hard and faithfully, right up to the close of the last term, when she commenced the agreeable task of preparing her wedding trouousse. She has been for a few years organized at Knox church, where friendship ripened into love between the choirmaster and the fair organist. Mr. and Mrs. Sutherland have taken up housekeeping on Second street, and it is understood that they intend to remain in their old positions in Knox church at least for the present. Metronome profers his congratulations, and best wishes for the future happiness of Mr. and Mrs. Sutherland.

The Log Cabin Co. is operating in the lower Seine district, on mining locations G 532 and 533, which lie on the south side of Wild Potato Lake. Across this property runs a banded vein, the mineralized portion being 120 feet wide, and on this Mr. Fisk is sinking two shafts 500 feet apart, one on the north wall and the other on the south. These shafts are now down 55 and 65 feet respectively and it is his intention, when both have reached the 100 foot level to crosscut the reef, and then drift along the opposite wall till the shafts are connected and a rectangle blocked out, 300 feet along and 120 feet across the width of the vein. The banded formation is full of quartz veins and stringers, forming, although a certain amount of visible gold has been encountered, a promising low grade prospect. Two hundred feet from the workings is Camp River, with 35 feet of head from which a considerable horsepower can be developed.

Bourke Cockran could not speak on the occasion of the Boston banquet to the French without dragging in his anti-British animosities and the British-Boer war. In the course of his speech he said: "The protest of Ireland against the war in South Africa as expressed in the British press, has postponed Irish emancipation, but it has immeasurably increased the world's respect for Irish character."

If the Irish party in parliament had contented itself with a solemn protest against the course of Great Britain in South Africa, and with a repetition of that protest in various forms as occasion required, the world would have approved. But when the Irish cheered in the house of commons, the news that British armies had been defeated and British soldiers slaughtered, they struck Irish home rule a deadlier blow than its enemies could give it. Such conduct did the Boers not the slightest good, and hurt the Irish cause seriously. They permitted their enemies to run away with their judgment. Any time that the Irish parliamentary party is more anxious to hurt Great Britain than it is to help Ireland, it commits a capital error, and no cool-headed friend of Ireland in America will agree with the judgment of Mr. Cockran, which is so clearly colored by passion. The question is: "Did the Irish parliamentary party take advantage of Great Britain's embarrassment in South Africa to advance the interests of Ireland?" Of course there is only one answer to this.—Duluth Tribune.

AN ERROR OF JUDGMENT.

This may seem very funny—or even ludicrous to some people, but I beg to assure them that it is all on the "dead square" with the injured individual—and he means it—for awhile. Therefore I now respectfully suggest to those who do not like this department of The Miner, to skip it and only read the other news. The paper is worth the subscription price, outside of the value contained in this column—though I must say in justice to myself, that I have often been told that this column alone was worth the subscription price.

By theatrical people who were trying to work Metronome for a good press notice for villainous acting.—Editor.]

There were not many turned out to the Johnson-Altafay concert, but those who did brave the rain, for that purpose must have been well satisfied that they attended the Opera House. Miss Johnson has left the beaten track of election—if she ever trod it—for the easy, chatty reminiscent style, and she is so rich in experiences of all kinds that to listen to her talking (I might almost say gossiping) about the people she met in England and the Church people in Manitoba is a positive delight, as keen almost as if she were criticising our own neighbors.

I had a long talk with Miss Johnson, and found her just as bright and witty off the stage as she is on. She knew a lot of theatrical people I know, and as a consequence our conversation was almost entirely about our friends on the road. Miss Johnson made a tour through Newfoundland last winter, and she tells some amusing stories of the people there. They are all Irish, and every family has a herd of goats which are allowed to wander about like flocks of hens are in other places, so that they may graze on potato cans and old shoes. One little town had so many goats said Miss Johnson, that it was an utter impossibility to bill it for a show. She gave a boy a dollar to put her posters up, and when he had announced his task completed and had collected his pay, Miss Johnson took a walk around town but could not see a solitary goat. She went back to the boy and when she told him there was not a bill to be seen, he expressed no surprise, but explained nonchalantly that "it was them notorious villains the goats, bad news to them that had ate all the postmen off the boards." Miss Johnson had doubts about the boy's veracity but these were all dispelled a few days

The location adjoining the Big Master on which E. H. Page of Minnesota is now working is already showing some very encouraging results. Mr. Page came to town for a day or two bringing with him a few samples taken from the surface of a good-sized and well-defined vein which is traceable right across the property. The samples, which are very rich in visible gold, will be sent away to be assayed.

Messrs. Hampden, Hargraves and Seib, of the Gold Moose Mining Co., on business connected with the company's property, on which active operations have been delayed for a short time for the want of necessary machinery and other causes. These differences have been removed, the machinery will be supplied and within a month operations will be resumed with renewed vigor.

Arrangements are being made for the opening up of one of the oldest mining prospects near Dryden—the IX. The property was discovered by Messrs. McKinnon, of Duluth, and Dan Buchanan, of Kootenay, some ten years ago, and was considered an extremely rich find. A test pit was sunk to a depth of 10 feet, the samples from which fully confirmed the value of their discovery. Since then no further work has been done. Last Friday Mr. McKinnon arrived at Dryden and with John McLeod and Ben St. John is making some further investigations. A few days ago, Mr. Sloan, Wilson, of Milwaukee, who are largely interested in this property, will arrive to assist in the examination and a decision will be arrived at regarding future development.—Wabigoon Star.

Mrs. Sutherland have taken up house-keeping on Second street, and it is understood that they intend to remain in their old positions in Knox church at least for the present. Metronome professes his congratulations, and best wishes for the future happiness of Mr. and Mrs. Sutherland.

MANITOU MINING ITEMS.

During H. D. Alston's visit to town he has been engaged on an ingenious device for pumping air at the foot of the shaft of the Royal Sovereign, which will materially facilitate the operations of the miners. The balance of the piping in connection with the water and steam, together with a hoist for hoisting ore from No. 2 shaft, has been shipped to the mine. One of the most complete assay plants in the country will also be placed on the property.

Among the passengers on the galatea who left for Gold Rock Wednesday morning was Mr. J. H. Vernon, of St. Paul, secretary of the Carleton Lake Gold Mining Company, of which Mr. Franklin Fleet, of Spencer, Iowa, is president. The object of Mr. Vernon's visit to the Manitou is to examine the mining situation generally and particularly the property of his company, which lies between the Reliance and 20th Century mines. Mr. Vernon has also a large interest with Mr. Fleet in the Olympia Gold Mining Company, now operating the Olympia mine near the Mikado, from an examination of which he arrived on the day evening.

Lord Hopetown, the governor-general of the Australian colonies, asked the Federal government for a raise of wages, and they promptly refused his Excellency's request. It appears that the "guy" has been wriggling along and trying to keep an existence on a beggarly pittance of $30,000 a year, but driven to desperation, he finally struck for higher pay. When the Australian government turned him down, Lord Hopetown promptly quitted his job, and now we suppose business is at a standstill in the Kangaroo Commonwealth. If the Governor-general's trade union is strong we may look for a protracted lockout which will seriously affect Trade and commerce. But let us hope this may be the worse that will happen, and that other governors general may not strike in sympathy with the disaffected Hopetown. It is a significant fact, and one that is causing deep anxiety in this country, that the rate of wages which is being struck against in Australia is the same here, and there is no telling what might happen if a walking delegate happened along and inflamed other governors general. If there were a strike on this side of the water it is hard to say where it might end, as the president of the United States is only getting $35,000 a year, and he has to do ten times the work of a governor-general.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

We would like to see a snapshot of Lord Kitchener's face when DeWitt walked up to sign that peace treaty. His lordship had chased the bewhiskered Boer all over the Transvaal and Orange River Colony for months in the endeavor to obtain an introduction, but only had the satisfaction of catching a glimpse of the elusive one's heels. If Kitchener so far forgot himself as to be guilty of staring last Saturday we feel sure that under the circumstances very few will blame him for his lack of good manners.

We are nothing if we are not loyal to the British Crown, but we must say that we hardly think it right that the British government should vote Lord Kitchener a factor of a million dollars besides extra pay for his services to the empire during the Boer war, while the widow and orphans of the private soldiers are allowed to exist or starve on the small subscriptions taken up in a box on the street corner. Where is Rudyard Kipling now?

The Toronto Telegram believes that Premier Ross has planned a bold course if the records go against him. He will make another appeal to the country. Goldring Smith, speaking on the constitutional aspect of such a move, says: "Mr. Ross has to choose between the course of resigning at once, if he felt himself defeated, and that of meeting the legislature. A second appeal to the country before the meeting of the legislature is out of the question. Mr. Ross is quite at liberty to sell all their stores of gold."

The possessors of heavenly wisdom are rich. In New Testament language, and specifically in the words of Christ those initiated into the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven are said to be possessed of manifold treasure. Therefore every scribe instructed unto the kingdom of heaven is like unto a man that is an householder which brought forth out of his treasure things new and old. Such an householder can entertain, and such a teacher may instruct.

Interpreter of Bunyan's story corresponds to this well instructed scribe of Christ's comparison; and from the case of Goodwill, the watcher at the wicket gate Christian was passed into the hands of Interpreter who from the great variety of his treasure, things new and old, instructed his pupil in heavenly wisdom, and prepared him for his pilgrimage. "Come in," therefore said Interpreter to Christian, "and I will show thee that which will be profitable to thee." These then are the things which Christian saw and heard in this house of wisdom.

4. The fire burning against the wall.

The singular feature about this fire was that the efforts of the man who sought to quench the flames by dashing water upon it were ineffectual; yea, more, notwithstanding his endeavor, the fire burned higher and hotter. The solution to this mystery is found by going to the other side of the wall. There stood a man with a vessel of oil from which he steadily, but secretly, fed the flames. And all this is Bunyan's encouragement to fearful souls: It is his manner of saying that it is God that worketh in them both to will and to do of His good pleasure, that the holy fires of grace burning in the human heart can never be quenched.

Interpreter's house had one picture, that of a grave man, his eyes turned toward heaven, the best of books in his hand, the word of truth upon his lips, the world behind his back; he stood also as if he pleaded with men, and a crown of gold did hang over his head. Henry Drummond interpreted the Angelus in these words, "Work, pray, love." In one word the significance of this picture is presented, teacher. The man whose picture this is, is the only man whom the Lord of the place whither thou art going hath authorized to be thy guide in all difficult places thou mayst meet with in thy way. Therefore take good heed to what I have showed thee, and bear well in mind what thou hast seen, lest in thy journey thou meet with some who pretend to lead thee right, but then they goes down to death.

A picture this is therefore of the true prophet for all time. These marks of devotion to God, familiarity with the Word, and worldliness distinguish him from those false prophets and deceivers against whom Christ warned His disciples. Pilgrims on life's journey must choose their guides with care. "A true witness delivereth souls." Follow those who speak according to the book and the testimony, follow Christ Himself who hath said, "He that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but have the light of life."

ON THE
FORT KANE
TRAILBy Cicely
Allen

Copyright, 1901, by A. S. Richardson

Gloomy indeed had Christmas day been in the little cabin snuggled against the snow incrustated side of Crow peak. Santa Claus had failed to strike the Fort Kane trail. Teddy and Freddy, the Squiye twins, had listened with blinking eyes to their mother's faltering explanation that the old chap could not get across the range, but when they had cuddled beneath their own buffalo robe and at a safe distance from the maternal eye could indulge in a few unmanly tears they privately exchanged the opinion that something else was wrong. What relief could not breast the drifts of the Fort Kane trail?

“Nevertheless for two days after Christmas they watched the trail with eager eyes. Today hope fairly died within them. A gray pall seemed to fall upon the narrow gulch and the mountains. Even the flames in the deep fireplace refused to dance, and the logs sulked blackly. Mrs. Squiye had been called to the nearest ranch by the illness of one neighbor she had known in this desolate western home. Her husband had gone away, ostensibly in search of deer meat. Perhaps in reality he wanted to get beyond sight of those four pathetic, questioning eyes, for there was absolutely not a dollar in the house with which to placate Santa Claus. Indeed it was a grave question how the Squiye establishment would be run until spring. There was the hole in the next gulch which Squiye had been guarding heroically from prying eyes, but even if its prospects were known would any one advance him ready cash?

The afternoon shadows were beginning to fall when Freddy was called from wrestling with the unruly fire by an exultant shout from Teddy, who clung desperately to his watch at the window. “They's somethin' comin', Ted! I hear it!” Their hearing, sharpened by long days and nights in mountain silence, caught the distant plunk, plunk of an approaching horse. There ought to have been bells and reindeer, but any sort of vehicle or animal would do if only Santa Claus held the lines. They were wild to rush out to the trail, but the horrors of blizzards had been drummed into their small brains until they were quite willing to obey the parental injunction to stay indoors.

Nearer and nearer came the sound. The boys stood on tiptoe at the window. Ah, he was turning in from the trail! There were two of him and on horseback! The twins threw open the doors and stood bared-backed and expectant as the two horses stopped and their riders finally entered through the narrow barred gate. At sight of the visitors Teddy could no longer hold back the tears. The disappointment was too great, nothing but cowboys and rough-looking ones at that!

Freddy pulled himself together and one it would last a month or two anyhow.”

The two men looked into each other's eyes, and the taller said as he pushed back his chair: “Wouldn't be surprisin' if that was why Santa Claus didn't come this way. He's a great feeder, you know. But ef we come up with him crossin' the range we'll tell him what good cooks you are.” He was pulling on his gloves now, but he stopped and thrust a hand into his pocket. “Here; give this ter your mother an' tell her we're sorry fer the mess we left, but we ain't got time ter clear up.”

Then they were gone, and Freddy and Teddy were studying over the round yellow dollar the tall man had thrown onto the table.

The two horsemen had pushed four miles in the teeth of the storm before they spoke of the twins. They had stopped under shelter of an overhanging rock to tighten up girths and to gather fresh strength from the flasks which they drew from their hip pockets. The shorter man leaned weary against his faithful horse.

“Seems a good many years, Jim, since the ole lady filled our stockin's an' told us stuf about Santa Claus. What was it?—The night before Christmas? Great stuff we thought it.”

“Come on,” said his companion anxiously. “You'll be off your nut directley ef you don't get some quinin' or somethin'.”

“I've got an idee when we strike Golden we'll buy somethin' sides, quinin'.” He groaned slightly and clutched at his side.

“It'll be a box o' 2 ef you don't get a move on,” growled the tall man.

His companion looked up with a smile that almost transfigured his face. “Don't get grouchy, Jim. We're goin' ter meet Santa Claus down ter Brown's store an' drop his pack by that cabin on the Fort Kane trail. It's a risk, I know”—as he noted the angry light in the other's eyes—but, Lord, them two youngsters has about cried their eyes out, an'—well, you remember when the ole lady filled our stockin's.”

The tall man threw himself into his saddle, but he did not answer even with an oath.

It was nearly morning in a narrow room at the Golden hotel. A smoky lamp gave forth sickly beam of light, which in turn fell upon a ghastly bearded face. There ought to have been bells and reindeer, but any sort of vehicle or animal would do if only Santa Claus held the lines. They were wild to rush out to the trail, but the horrors of blizzards had been drummed into their small brains until they were quite willing to obey the parental injunction to stay indoors.

Nearer and nearer came the sound. The boys stood on tiptoe at the window. Ah, he was turning in from the trail! There were two of him and on horseback!

The twins threw open the doors and stood bared-backed and expectant as the two horses stopped and their riders finally entered through the narrow barred gate. At sight of the visitors Teddy could no longer hold back the tears. The disappointment was too great, nothing but cowboys and rough-looking ones at that!

DON'T SHOOT OWLS.

BEST INTERESTS OF CANADA SERVED
IF THEY ARE KEPT ALIVE.

Their unusual number this year indicates that Nature has an unusually big lot of work for them to do—investigations of Government scientific observers.

It is said that in certain parts of Manitoulin Island there are at the present time so many owls as to attract attention, that people are shooting them daily, and having them “stuffed.” The best interests of the owl would be served if the shooting that nature gives them were not interferred with, and the best interests of Manitoulin Island would be served if the owls were alive in the woods instead of being used as ornaments in spare rooms or front parlors. If there is an unusual number of owls up there it simply means that there is an unusual amount of work for them to do, and if they are shot, and not allowed to do their work the farmers will probably have reason to regret it. The owls are there because rats and mice abound. Instead of killing them, the people of the locality should regard them as a protection against pests.

As a rule, when an owl is seen near a farm house there is an excited rush for the gun, and much disappointment unless the bird is killed and yet it would be quite as sensible to set the cat on mousing in the house as to kill the owl for mousing in the barn and in the fields.

There is plenty of authority for saying that owls do a great deal of good and very little harm to man's interests. Charles W. Nash of Toronto has written a pamphlet about the birds of Ontario, which the Department of Agriculture has published, and in it he shows that the killing of owls and hawks on sight is extremely foolish. The great horned or cat owl occasionally kills poultry and partridges, but it chiefly feeds on rats, mice, squirrels, skunks, rabbits and muskrats. Mr. Nash's own investigations and those conducted by Dr. Fisher for the Washington Government show that the cat owl is the only member of the family that eats kow's poultry, while all the others—the hognose, the sharp-shinned, the barred, and the screech-owl—subsist almost exclusively on mice, moles and insects. Mr. Nash says of them that in following out the natural law which governs their lives they greatly help to keep in check that vast army of little animals which, if allowed to increase unrestrained by their natural enemies, would in a few seasons destroy all vegetation on the face of the earth.

Hawks meet with the same unfortunate enemy. There are eleven species common in Ontario, and of these only two are known to eat kow's poultry, and two of the eleven are the chief offenders. The goshawk kills poultry, while the sharp-shinned hawk kills only birds. He is a large bird, while the hawks that prey on chickens in summer are small ones. The hawks never touch poultry, and seldom or never kill birds of any kind. These big winged birds are called at every opportunity and yet they are among the best friends the farmer has. They live on mice, frogs, squirrels, and snakes and the rough-legged variety especially

The Secret

Of womanly health would be esteemed as priceless by thousands of suffering women. Each month sees them moaning in a darkened room. At the best they endure pain every day. At the worst the pain becomes torment.

The secret of womanly health is in keeping the womanly organism in a perfectly healthy state. This can be done by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It regulates the periods, dries debilitating drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong and使 women well.

Women suffering from chronic forms of disease are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, etc. All correspondence is held as sacredly confidential and womanly confidences are guarded by strict professional privacy. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Accept no substitute for Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. There is nothing else “just as good” for womanly ailments.

“I suffered for more than ten years with female weakness of very bad form,” writes Mrs. Marybird of Etobicoke, Ontario. “I consulted Dr. R. V. Pierce, and ‘Golden Medical Discovery’ with good results. I am able to do my own work again. I do not know how to thank you enough for the help you have given me. Your remedy did far more for me than doctor's medicines, and I have taken lots of them.”

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure all diseases.

PURSUANT to an order of the High Court of Justice made in the action of Frasier vs. Griffith et al., there will be offered for sale with the approbation of Thomas W. Chapple, Esquire, Local Master of the Supreme Court of Judicature at Rat Portage, by Robert J. Parrott, Auctioneer, at the Town Hall, in the Town of Rat Portage, at Two o'clock in the afternoon, on Saturday, the Seventh day of June, A.
D. 1902, all and singular that certain parcel or tract of land and premises situate, lying and being in the Township of Jaffray, in the District of Rainy River, and described as follows: That part of Block B, lying south of the Government Colonization Road, as shown on Plan M. 28, filed in the Office of Land Titles at Rat Portage, and being Parcel No. 2,234, containing twelve acres more or less.

On the said lands is said to be erected a one and one-half story solid brick dwelling house 40x26 feet, with brick addition 16x16 feet and stone foundations.

The property will be offered for sale
subject to a reserved bid and subject to a mortgage to the Dominion Building and Loan Association.

"Pshaw!" said the tall man, looking from one boy to the other. "This storm was most unhandy for the ole gent." Then, in a wheedling tone:

"But if you was ter give us somethin'
ter eat p'raps we might help the ole chap out a bit of we come across him up the trail. Now, ef you could show me where the coffee was, an' some bacon,
we could do the rest."

Freddy was all importance on the instant. He hauled out the tin can of coffee and ground away until the big man harn him stop. He found the bread, too, and some cold beans and a small slab of bacon.

It was the tall man who did all the work. His partner sat by the fireplace
dejected and uninterested, but not un-watched. Under the heavy brows of
the would be cook anxious eye kept
guard on the ailing one. The two children pratled on, enjoying the usual opportunity of playing boston. At last
the scant meal was set forth, and the two men slumped their chairs
before the table, covered with oilcloth.

The vendor shall not be bound to furnish an abstract of title, deed or

Freddy pulled himself together with infinite western hospitality told the men to come in.

"If you want to see pop, you'd better
wait," he volunteered. "He's gone to track a deer, but he'll be home 'bout supper time."

The taller man straightened up, as if the name he had not heard in years,
"Jimmy," hurt him. He picked up the other man's coat and took from its pockets some odd shaped, knobby bump-es. Then he came back to the bedside and gripped the hand that lay outside the gray blanket.

"I can't do it, George; by heavens, I can't!"

Slowly the sick man opened his eyes.
"Per God's sake, man, it's bad enough for me ter die, but ter see you too by the deputies"—A shudder ran over the dying man's frame. "Go on, Jimmy,
an'—an'—don't forget them kids."

the body of Jim Cosgrove, one of the most notorious stage robbers of the

and eating more candy than they had enjoyed in all the rest of their short

Chinese Weddings.

The chief incident in a Chinese marriage is the arrival of the bride in her bridal clothes before the house of her chosen one. This is a de facto fulfilment of the contract. The wedding day is determined by the parents of the groom. The imperial calendar names the lucky days, and on such days the so called "red celebrations" take place, both in the city and country. The same bridal clothes may be used several times. That the chief part of a Chinese marriage is the arrival of the bride at the house of the groom is illustrated by the fact that the sons are often married without being present at their own wedding. It is not believed to be fortunate to change the wedding day when once decided. If the future husband, therefore, happens to be called away on the wedding day, the marriage takes place by sending the bride to his house.

It was the tall man who did all the
work. His partner sat by the fireplace
dejected and uninterested, but not un-
watched. Under the heavy brows of
the would be cook anxious eye kept
guard on the ailing one. The two children pratled on, enjoying the usual
opportunity of playing boston. At last
the scant meal was set forth, and the two men slumped their chairs
before the table, covered with oilcloth.

Hawks meet with the same unresponsible enmity. There are eleven species common in Ontario, and of these only five are ever known to touch poultry, and two of the eleven are the chief offenders. The goshawk kills poultry, but he is seen in Ontario in winter only. He is a large bird white the hawk that prey on chicks in summer are small ones.
"Hen hawks" never touch poultry and seldom or never kill birds of any kind. These big heavy-winged birds are killed at every opportunity, and yet they are among the best friends
the farmer has. They live on insects, frogs, squirrels, and snakes, and the rough-legged variety is particularly spoken of by Mr. Nash as a blessing to the country. He estimates that each marsh hawk eats six field mice every day he is in the Province.

doing a good business since the season opened on the lake. Last week Hugh Armstrong paid out to them $2,500 for the week's catch—88,000 pounds. This was the record week for Delta. Shipments were made every morning, so the N. P. Train ran on its special schedule to Delta every evening during the week. The fishermen were undoubtedly making a good wage, but their season being short the men claim that they were getting the small end of the fish deal.

The prices paid were half a cent per pound for jack, and a cent and a half for pickerel, cleaned. The fish dealers notified the men that with the beginning of this week the price for pickerel would be one and a quarter. This was too much for the fishing colony, who decided at once not to sell fish at the new price or even at the old. They will wait until the price reaches three quarters for jack and a cent and three quarters for pickerel. Instead of accepting a lower price they would demand a higher, and they say they will not fish until the advanced price is paid.

One reason is that this place is as busy as a thoroughfare. There's a constant coming and going. More than that, you can always find out who anybody is. There's people here who knock around all the time, and delight in telling you who's who. As you don't know anybody here, you'd be a picnic for one of these celebrity-snappers. When I first came down here, I was greatly impressed by the way some of these chaps float around and chat with some of the great men of the land. New Col. Sam Hughes with Sixteen Men Captured 200 Boers.

Many people in this country are familiar with Col. Sam Hughes' exploit in South Africa, when, with his men Turpin and eighteen men of Warren's Scouts, he made prisoner 200 Boers, securing their arms and 200,000 rounds of ammunition. The colonel, with his little band of men, saw a large body of Boers, and rode boldly up to them demanding their instant surrender, claiming that a large British army was five miles away, said rapidly advancing. The Boers was in command of these Boers, and personally refused to surrender, and invited those who had as he did to ride off with him, when 30 men did.

The others 200 in all, surrendered their arms and ammunition, and were taken back to the British lines, a distance of seven-and-a-half miles, the journey occupying the best part of four days. Col. Hughes related this story in his own famous letters, and quite recently, in a meeting of Warren's Subscribers Society, in substituting the same words. The London Times (July 1) says: "It will probably rank as the greatest triumph of the war."

DELAYED BY A BUREAU.

Ceremony Was Performed on the Train-Bridgehead. Waited for Girl to Grow.

Pressed for time and impatient to wed the bride for whom he had looked in vain for ten long years, Charles M. Woodworth, a mining law specialist of Dawson, was married yesterday at Calgary, Alberta, to Miss Beatrice Sturt of that city. An exceedingly romantic history surrounded the wedding in addition to the unique fact of its having been performed on board of a Pullman coach while the train waited for the bureau ceremony to be concluded.

More than a decade ago, when Woodworth was a youth in Nova Scotia, he started on a cross-country tramp. One exceedingly hot day he stopped at a farm house for refreshments and his wants were supplied by an exceedingly pretty little girl of ten years. The young man lingered with her as long as possible and in after years never forgot the incident.

Two years ago he tried to find the girl, but the family had moved, no one knew whither. Coming from Dawson two months ago Woodworth met the young woman on the train and they speedily became engaged, but she refused to accompany him north, and the wedding he desired was postponed indefinitely. Thence Woodworth went to Edmonton to transact some business and thence travelled in Eastern Canada. He was just starting west again when he received a telegram from the young woman, indicating that she would go with him to Dawson City or anywhere else, the only limit being to the ends of the earth.

So the young lawyer hurried westward. He had no stop-over privilege and so he wired to a Calgary clergyman, who, with the bride, awaited the overland on the station platform. The ceremony was speedily performed on the train to the enthusiastic delight of the other Pullman passengers, and Woodworth's family. His wife was transferred into the happiest of wedding journeys.—Vancouver corner post San Francisco Chronicle.

Something Extra Special.

THIS time indeed we have a treat for you—we just opened a case of ROYAL BAVARIAN CHINA. Such an importation has never yet been made in Rat Portage. We give you all an invitation to come and enjoy this feast for the eyes, even if you don't buy, you will carry away a good impression of our rare good taste in the selection of these goods. The pieces consist of Large and Small Salads, Cups and Saucers, Cake Plates, Cream Jugs, Sugars and Creams, and are in the green and maroon colors now so fashionable in the east.
